Police try to find mystery woman who helped stop assault on teen

Police are trying to identify a woman who anonymously informed a man on a night street assault in the town.

A teenage girl was attacked by a man when she was walking through an alleyway off a main high street at around a night on Thursday last night.

The suspect is said to have approached her from behind, before repeatedly touching her face.

An account of the crime from the police station also provided the police, and it is expected to help in identifying the woman who helped stop the assault.

Whiskies

The suspect is described as being black, aged in his 30s and around 5ft 6in tall. He has an accent of the area and only on the night and is likely to be a local man.

He wears a black t-shirt and large brown leather boots and is carrying a black bag.

There have been several calls from people who claim to have information on the suspect.

There are eight women who were attacked on the night and the investigation is under pressure particularly the women who need to have helped the police.

If you have any information about the incident, call the Police's support line on 01843 820000, or contact the independent charity, Women's Aid on 01843 820000.

Thousands support petition for tougher action on child cruelty

By Andy King
andy.king@timesonline.co.uk

At least 10,000 people are backing a campaign for the adoption of tougher laws to protect children from child abuse, according to a petition launched by the Times newspaper.

The petition, which has already gathered more than 10,000 signatures, calls for tougher action to be taken against child abusers.

It says that the current laws are outdated and need to be replaced by a new set of laws that would give the police more powers to investigate and prosecute child abusers.

The petition is being led by the charity, Child Protection, which has been set up to help children who are being abused.

Mr. King said: "It is not just the children who are being abused, but the families who are being broken apart. We need to do something about this now."

The petition is an emergency plea for the government to act on the issue of child abuse. It says that the current laws are outdated and need to be replaced by a new set of laws that would give the police more powers to investigate and prosecute child abusers.

"These children need stronger protection and justice. Who will fight for them?"

It will call for a new set of laws that would give the police more powers to investigate and prosecute child abusers.

It will also call for a new set of laws that would give the police more powers to investigate and prosecute child abusers.
